VOLUME 6 JUNE 2014

CFRW To Start A Garden: GROWING PATRIOTS By Gail Schubot, CFRW Literacy Chair

"Freedom is never more than one generation away from extinction. We didn't pass it to our children in the bloodstream. It must be fought for, protected, and handed on for them to do the same, or one day we will spend our sunset years telling our children and our children's children what is was once like in the United States where men were free." --- Ronald Reagan

Dear Members of Cy-Fair Republican Women:

You are invited to participate in a new project for our organization:
Beginning this July, you are invited to engage in at least one patriotic activity on a monthly basis with one or more children or young people. We invite you to share in some way those things of our history, culture and government that can lead to patriotism and love of country and state.

What children you ask? Think of your kids, grandkids and other young folks with whom you interact on a frequent basis. Children with whom you go to baseball or soccer games, band, excursions to the movies, and all kinds of the other activities...but maybe not so much activities with a patriotic theme, at least on a regular basis.

You are encouraged to customize your activities to suit you and your children's personalities and interests. If you are a history buff, you may want to spend time about the different presidents of the United States. If you are musical, you may want to listen to some great patriotic music. If you are visiting San Antonio, discuss the history of the Alamo. If traveling to Austin, visit the capital together. If supporting a candidate, have them help you place the sign in your front yard. If you are going to vote, look over the ballot in advance, together.

The activities can be as simple or as elaborate as you wish. They need not be lengthy. We encourage you to have some fun with your kids while making a conscious and consistent monthly effort to devoting some time with them in order to share your own interest in and commitment to being a good and knowledgeable citizen. It is also a wonderful time to find out what they know, what questions they have, and what inspires them!

With little ones, the time spent together may be as simple as drawing the Texas flag or finding the state of Texas on a map. With our older kids, it might be reading the story of how the words to "America the Beautiful" were inspired from a journey to the summit of Pike's Peak.

While it may seem easier to find time with kids at home, long distance need not be an obstacle: take advantage of what you can do through the mail (mailing a letter or a book) or by email (cut, paste & email a picture or an article) or even connect via Skype (let them know you saw the governor at the TFRW meeting)!

So what does this get us? Hopefully, over time, a garden of patriots. No, they won't turn into the next generation of legislators overnight. They won't become experts on the Constitution in the blink of an eye. But with devotion, cultivation and love, eventually, these children will grow up appreciating and understanding our state and country and our form of government. Maybe they will recognize a painting of George Washington, maybe they will know what protections the First Amendment gives us, maybe they will understand the difference between a bill and a law

As among a proactive group such as CFRW, this initiative may seem a little bit like "preaching to the choir"! If you have children at home, they may very well already see and be involved in your political activities and good citizenry. But even so, we would like to acknowledge what you are doing, provide additional incentive and maybe help you take it to the next level.

We will talk about Growing Patriots at the June CFRW meeting. The program is still developing and we appreciate your ideas and suggestions. In the meanwhile, a few points to keep in mind:

- Growing Patriots is a voluntary endeavor.
- We will provide a means for recording what you do.
- We will build a database of ideas of what activities you can do with younger and older children, when together and also long distance, and include a number of topics of interest.
- CFRW has endorsed you reporting one campaign hour per month for each child with whom you do an activity.
- For those who participate monthly through this inaugural half-year (through December) of the program, we will have a special award at the year's end!

We all know what it means to have a "green thumb". We now challenge the members of CFRW to develop "red, white and blue thumbs" and help our state and country grow a new garden of patriots!

PROGRAMS ~ Barbara Buxton

Paul Simpson was elected Harris County Republican Party Chairman in the March 6, 2014 Republican Primary. His term will begin June 16, 2014. Paul will be the CFRW guest speaker for the June 10 meeting.

A lawyer and engineer by profession, Paul's lifelong passion has been conservative political activism. A pro-life conservative, Paul has been a Republican political leader since he was in high school. Growing up in and near New Orleans, Paul joined the Louisiana Teen-Age Republicans at age thirteen, and was elected state chair by the time he was sixteen.

After being named National Outstanding Teen-Age Republican, Paul came to Houston to attend Rice University, where he was active in student government and chaired the Young Republicans. Paul's summer jobs (besides construction and offshore oil field work) included working for a national conservative organization in recruiting and mobilizing young people for conservative Republican congressional campaigns in Michigan and Iowa.

After graduating from Rice with degrees in history and engineering, Paul went to work as an engineer in the oil industry. He designed and oversaw drilling and producing wells in different areas of the country and offshore, supervised engineering teams, and managed multi-million-dollar projects constructing and installing onshore and offshore platforms, facilities, and pipelines.

While working full-time in the oil and gas business, Paul put himself through law school at night, graduating with honors from the University of Houston law school. A licensed engineer and patent lawyer, Paul's law practice primarily involves oil and gas disputes and transactions. He has been a partner with the law firm of McGinnis, Lochridge & Kilgore since 2001.

Paul has been an adult Scout leader since the 1990s and was Committee Chair of Boy Scout Troop 505 from 2006 to 2013. Paul was also a member, then 2006-07 President, of the Pastoral Council of the 4,000-family St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church in Houston, where he also serves as a Lector. Paul is also in his fourth year of serving on the Board of Incarnate Word Academy in Houston.

Paul and his wife Kathy have been married over 28 years. Their son, a recent college graduate, and daughter, a college senior, are both Houston natives and proud Republicans!

LEGISLATIVE ~ Jan Ott

Funding Our Transportation Needs

Our growing transportation needs merit continued scrutiny. In the last legislative session there was a focus on using money that was collected for designated purposes to be spent for those specified uses, such as state parks, hospital trauma care, and transportation rather than being used to balance the budget.

Speaker Joe Strauss in now proposing for the next legislative session that the budget use all of the money in the State Highway Fund for transportation and to increase the transparency of that fund. Speaker Strauss says, "This approach will make the state budget even more straightforward, just as taxpayers expect. It will also provide needed transportation revenue — without a tax increase — at a time when Texas continues to grow twice as fast as the rest of the country.

Right now, various taxes and fees — most notably the gas tax, but also fees from driver's license renewals and speeding tickets — go into the State Highway Fund to pay for transportation. But for several years, some of that money has helped fund agencies that are not directly related to transportation, such as the Department of Public Safety and the State Office of Administrative Hearings. By spending that money directly on transportation, we can put an additional $1.3 billion toward improving mobility over two years. This proposal would not affect the 25 percent of gas-tax revenue that the Texas Constitution dedicates for public education."

In November, one of the issues that we will be voting on will be a constitutional amendment to allow the state to divert half of the oil and gas severance tax that funds the state's emergency fund, or Rainy Day Fund, to roads, giving the highway department a potential boost of $1.2 billion annually. This is only a small portion of what is needed as it will provide possibly $1.2 billion annually of the $4 billion the highway department says is needed.

Highway planning in particular relies on a predictable revenue stream since federal law requires state DOTs to produce both short and long-range plans that are fiscally constrained. In other words, a road project cannot be placed into a plan and move forward unless the highway department can show how it will be funded in the year built. Without reliable revenues, the highway department cannot provide the needed roads.

The Speaker has appointed a Select Committee on Transportation Funding, Expenditures and Finance. to look at the reliability of the funding and to examine whether the money is being used efficiently and appropriately. While the House may not be currently in session, they are busy working to find solutions to our transportation challenges. With Texas' growing economy resulting in a large population growth and more and more vehicles on our roads, we must have major reforms. Speaker Strauss says, "That's why I will continue to encourage all Members to propose bold transportation solutions that will make Texas an even better place to raise a family and to conduct business. The House will continue working to increase transparency and accountability in state government as the next session approaches. So far, we've made good progress. Using gas-tax dollars for transportation makes sense for our economy and for taxpayers..."

WAYS AND MEANS ~ Dr. Millie Alford

Summer is now in full swing...We just "breezed" through Spring, but that is usual for Houston weather. Our membership is growing and that's because we offer the most viable option for strong conservative values. The Run Off election will be over by print time, so I hope that everyone voted for the RIGHT candidates. The State Convention is right around the corner and it should be a great experience. There are several members attending and it's a great opportunity to see how our representatives carry out their duties to inform and encourage all of us.

Hope all new members are enjoying their CFRW Cookbook. We still have a good supply, so please call me if you'd like an extra one for a friend or family member. If anyone needs to get a bling shirt or a denim shirt before the convention, please let me know. We have all sizes and I can get them to you in plenty of time. Also, we have a new supply of Peter Barnes books coming just in time to gift them to your Kids and G-Kids for some fun summer reading. Invite your friends to visit our meetings and let's make CFRW grow to 100 this year. Stay cool and live RIGHT!
